Blaze kills 3 women

Sound of apartment fire 'like a freight train or a jet engine'

By JEFF HODSON
Metro Vancouver

Three elderly women were killed trying to escape from a suspicious fire that tore through their North Vancouver apartment, RCMP said yesterday.

Two were just metres from safety. Most of those who did escape were taken to hospital

» Between six and 11 people were taken to hospital with minor injuries, possibly with smoke inhalation.

alerted by an 11-year-old boy who ran through the halls screaming that the building was on fire.

Ilse Wilhelmine Dragossy, 84, was identified as one of the victims.

RCMP Const. Michael McLaughlin said one victim was found on the third floor. Two others were discovered in the first floor lobby of The Alana, a three-storey wood-frame apartment in the 100 block of East 19th Street.

"Sadly," McLaughlin said, "it looks as though there's a strong possibility they were trying to escape the smoke and the flames and they just couldn't get out in time."

The fire began Tuesday at 9:45 p.m. By the time firefighters arrived, three suites were fully engulfed.

Firefighters rescued six people from balconies at the rear of the building and prevented the fire from spreading.

Jordan Gillmore, 26, who lived in a third floor suite, said flames were shooting nine to 12 metres above the building, scorching the tree outside.

"It sounded like a freight train or a jet engine," he said.

McLaughlin said the fire will be treated as "suspicious" but North Vancouver Fire Chief Barrie Penman said there is nothing to indicate that the fire was "malicious."

Zoo tragedy

One monkey dead, another missing

By ANDREW KING
for Metro Vancouver

“Devastated” officials at the Greater Vancouver Zoo are frantically seeking the public’s help after a male spider monkey died and his female companion went missing.

Jocko, killed

Mia, missing

Fighting back tears, Jody Henderson of the Vancouver zoo said that the 12- to 15-year-old monkeys were a “part of the family.” She added she has no idea who could be behind the break-in. Henderson said she believed that Mia was taken, but did not know why. Security personnel were working at the time of the break-in but did not see anything.

Langley RCMP are investigating the case and are searching for Mia. Jocko’s body is undergoing an autopsy to determine the cause of death.

Jocko was found dead and the female, Mia, went missing on Tuesday night after their enclosure was broken into at the zoo in Aldergrove, where both monkeys had been long-term residents.

Police seek public’s help in manhunt

By KRISTEN THOMPSON
Metro Vancouver

Vancouver Police are asking for help finding a dangerous man who tried to confront an ex-girlfriend — whom he was formerly jailed for assaulting — at her work.

Gregory Joseph Scuby, 32, disappeared from his halfway house in late April, and Const. Tim Fanning said he’s possibly living in the Downtown Eastside.

“He’s looking very rough, like a person living on the streets,” Fanning said.

“We’re doing everything we can to make sure the victim’s safe. Obviously she’s very frightened of this man.”

Fanning said Scuby is known to be violent and in possession of weapons, and advises anyone who sees him to immediately call police.

Alleged video evidence gone

Video footage allegedly showing a teenage girl being assaulted and robbed by six girls outside a Vancouver SkyTrain station, which would have helped police lay charges, has been taped over.

Const. Tim Fanning said yesterday the case is still open and officers are working toward laying charges in the absence of video evidence.

Sheshleen Datt, 18, was assaulted and robbed by six girls outside Nanaimo SkyTrain station on April 29, within view of a security camera.

Allegedly police immediately requested the tape, which is on a loop and records over itself every two hours.

But a transit officer failed to pass on the request to Sky-

Train’s control centre and the evidence was lost.

Police caught six girls shortly after the assault but let them go without charges due to lack of evidence.

METRO VANCOUVER

Jordan Gillmore, 26, spent the night with family after a fire forced him from his North Vancouver apartment.

Residents barred from apartment

Police say it'll be days until people can return home

Residents of The Alana don't know exactly when they will be allowed to move back into suites heavily damaged by smoke and water during an apartment fire Tuesday night. "It will be a couple of days," said North Vancouver Fire Chief Barrie Penman, outside the 26-suite apartment yesterday.

From the rear alley, the damage appeared isolated to three charred suites on the west side of the building.

"There's a lot of smoke damage," Penman said. "It doesn't smell very good in there. There's actually no reason to push people back into their suites."

Residents Jordan Gillmore and his girlfriend Kristi Hume

« If there's medication or car keys we can send crews in to help out. But as far as accessing the building and living in it, it'll be some time now. »

said they spent the night with a family member, while Bryan Matthews and his son Dustan bedded down at his boss' house.

RCMP Const. Michael McLaughlin said it will be days before people will be allowed back home.

Ideally, he said, people will stay with friends and family. Victim services will help those who haven't a place to stay.

Matthews said he's unsure where he'll stay.

"It's the first time I've had to do this," he said. "We've got the camper."

Boy, 11, yells out

Roach-Matthews ran down halls to alert neighbours of blaze

An 11-year-old boy ran through the hallways of a burning apartment building in North Vancouver Tuesday night, yelling "Fire" and warning residents to vacate as a blaze gutted suites and killed three elderly women.

"I'm proud of him," said Bryan Matthews of his son Dustan Roach-Matthews, as the pair stood outside the fire-damaged Alana apartment building on East 19th Street yesterday morning. "I think he contributed (to saving lives)."

At 9:45 p.m. Tuesday, the pair heard a beeping fire alarm coming from a suite on the first floor. Bryan said he instinctively disregarded the alarm, assuming that someone's burnt toast had set it off.

His son, however, went to investigate.

"I saw smoke coming out the door," said Dustan, a Grade 5 student at Westview Elementary. "I was running up and down the hallways yelling, 'Fire! Fire! Fire!' and telling everyone to evacuate."

"If I just ignored it — thinking it was the beeping of an alarm or something — we would not have been able to get out ... we wouldn't have been able to warn other people."

Gases suspected as explosion cause

FIRE Fire investigators are looking at the possibility that a propane tank, or a medical oxygen tank, may have contributed to the speed at which a fatal fire tore through a North Vancouver apartment, RCMP said yesterday.

"There's no question about it, it moved really fast," said North Vancouver Fire Chief Barrie Penman.

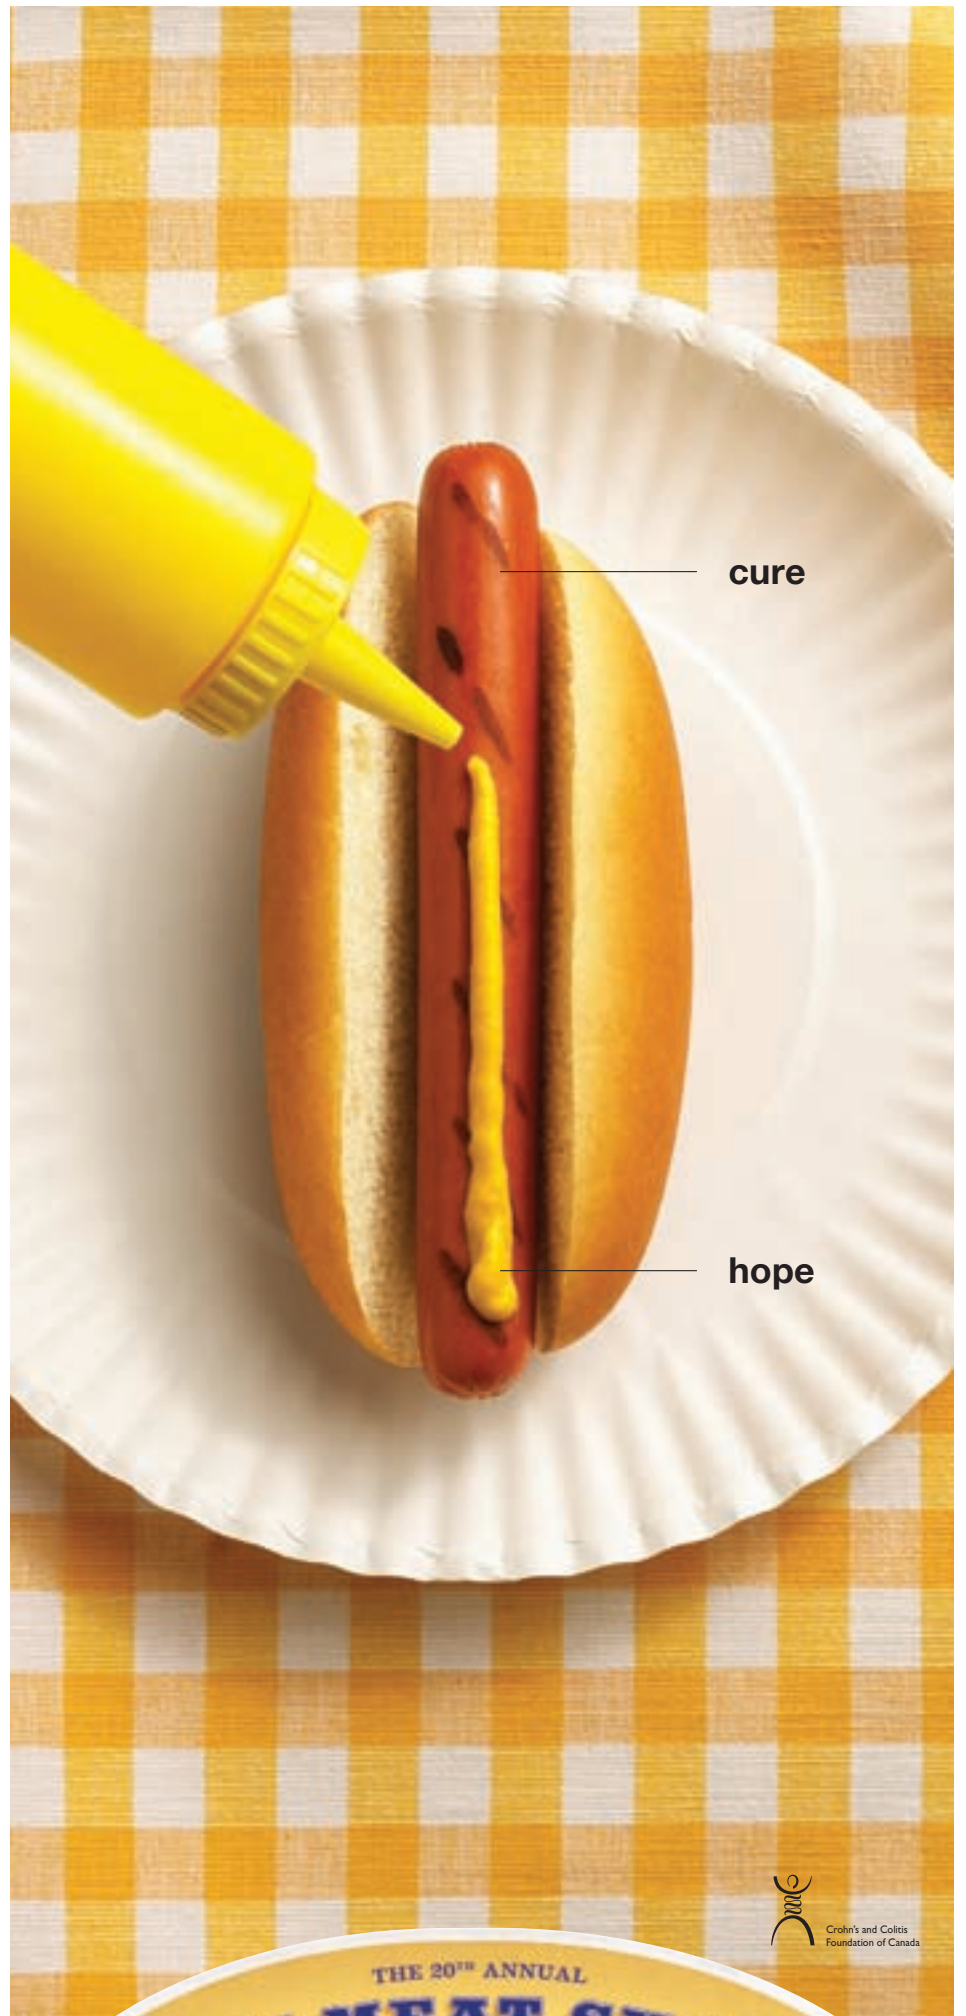

The fire is believed to have started in a first-floor suite and engulfed suites above it on the second and third floors.

"It's a wood-frame building. It's as simple as that. Wood burns fast."

RCMP Const. Michael McLaughlin said the building is more than 40 years old and did not comply with the fire code of the time. There were no sprinklers and few smoke and heat detectors.

Dustan Roach-Matthews, a young boy who alerted neighbours, said an explosion blew out the windows.

"We are investigating propane and even oxygen tanks as possible contributors to this fire and to the spread of this fire," McLaughlin said.

Kyoto rule violations investigated

Canada may face UN carbon trading suspension if guilty

Canada will be investigated on suspicion of violating rules for registering greenhouse gases that are the mainstay of a UN-led fight against global warming, official documents show.

Ottawa played down the news, saying it was taking quick steps to ensure it complied by the rules.

Canada could be suspended from rights to trade carbon dioxide if found to be in breach of the rules by the

Illegals tip of the iceberg: Expert

Says many workers overstaying visas

Canada's border agency's failure to track down 41,000 illegal migrants may be only the tip of the iceberg as an unknown number of people simply overstay in the country after their visas expire, a security expert warns.

With the federal government's rapid expansion of the temporary foreign worker program, many of the workers may just stay, said Martin Collacott of the Fraser Institute, a national conservative think tank.

"When you have a lot of

"That's what we've found in other countries. It takes a large bureaucracy to keep track of them. Right now, I see no sign of that in place."

Ottawa issued 106,750

temporary foreign worker permits in 2006, and 103,000 were issued within the first nine months of 2007.

The number is expected to grow with various measures introduced by the Harper government to make it easier for Canadian employers to bring in workers from abroad.

First UN aid flights land in Myanmar

The first United Nations relief flights started to arrive late yesterday for cyclone victims in military-ruled Myanmar as a U.S. diplomat said that more than 100,000 people may have been killed.

The cyclone slammed into coastal towns and villages in the rice-growing Irrawaddy delta southwest of Yangon on Saturday, the most devastating storm to hit Asia since 1991, when 143,000 people were killed in neighbouring Bangladesh.

Witnesses reported that villages were destroyed and people fought for survival by clutching trees as the storm brought walls of water charging inland from the sea.

Security costs hurting North American cars

Border delays a misallocation of resources: Minister

Chinese and Indian cars will soon hit the North American market and will have a price advantage, partly because security-related costs add to the price of North American vehicles, Industry Minister Jim Prentice said yesterday.

» Prentice said resources should target areas of highest risks while lowering barriers and improving border infrastructure to make trade move faster.

Prentice said the costs and delays involved in North American automobile parts travelling back and forth across the U.S.-Canadian border on their way to final assembly add several hundred dollars to the price of a North American vehicle.

Speaking at a conference in Washington, Prentice said of the delays, "Not only do we hamper the legitimate trade and travel that provide the foundation for North American prosperity, but we are also clearly misallocating resources." REUTERS

Nonis could join Leafs

Could Dave Nonis be the next GM of the Maple Leafs? Current GM Cliff Fletcher has made it very clear that he is only there to keep the seat warm for whoever is chosen to steer the ship, and sources indicate that the Leafs are interested in talking to Nonis about the job.

Paul Maurice got booted yesterday from the head coaching gig in Toronto, but who in their right mind would take the job behind the bench with the knowledge that a new GM could waltz in and make wholesale changes?

Many inside the hockey world assumed that Brian Burke would ride into the big smoke to save the Maple Leafs, but he is committed to remaining in Anaheim for at least one more season. Toronto can ill afford to wait on Burke, as this rudderless franchise needs a new direction right now.

Carolina GM Jim Rutherford had been rumoured to be a favourite of Leafs' ownership, which is a separate but even more convoluted issue. Maple Leaf Sports and Entertainment has proven itself to be a meddling entity lacking in class; remember when CEO Richard Peddie publicly stated he'd made a mistake in hiring former GM John Ferguson Jr. while Ferguson was still on the job? Nonis is eager to get back on the horse, but he has to consider the people he would be dealing with at MLSE.

» The world hockey championships may not get as much attention as the Stanley Cup playoffs, but you won't find a better line to watch than Canada's monstrous trio of Dany Heatley, Rick Nash and Ryan Getzlaf.

The combined height and weight of that line is 18-foot-10, 651 lbs and none of those players is afraid of contact. Throw in the fact that all three are extremely skilled offensively and you wonder how anyone can stop them. So far nobody's been able to; Heatley leads the tourney with 10 points in three games while Nash and Getzlaf have each averaged two points per game.

Just to give you an idea of how dominant these guys have been, TSN's Pierre McGuire says it might be the best line he's ever seen at any level. That's saying something since McGuire was an assistant coach in Pittsburgh when Mario Lemieux and company were winning Stanley Cups.

Lamar Odom came up huge with 19 points and 16 rebounds for the Lakers, while Derek Fisher scored 22 and Pau Gasol netted 20 in the victory.

"I love you guys so much," Bryant said to the fans before the game. "It's been 11, 12 years, we've still got many more years to go. We will play into June!"

After a four-game sweep against Denver in the first round, the Lakers have won the first two games of this series by a combined 21 points. It's their 10th straight win, dating back to the regular season.

Tiny pine beetle causes big impact

Human beings are obsessed with size. We want bigger cars and bigger houses, and, of course, men want bigger you-know-whats. But big isn't everything.

A tiny insect, the mountain pine beetle, has devastated British Columbia's interior pine forests, threatening enormous social, economic and ecological upheaval. The infestation, which is expected to kill close to 80 per cent of B.C.'s mature pine forests, was caused in large part by global warming and industrial forest-management practices.

In addition, the devastation caused by the beetles could exacerbate the unnatural warming that is already occurring. Normally, forests are carbon sinks, absorbing carbon dioxide, and storing it in plant biomass and soils below ground.

In attempting to stop the beetles' spread, the B.C.

government has encouraged forestry companies to clear-cut large areas of pine forest, even though they include surviving trees of other species. However, the hyper-pace, scale, and intensity of this logging threatens to increase greenhouse gas emissions, as CO₂ is released when trees are cut down and carbon-rich forest soils are mechanically disturbed.

Clear-cutting also kills immature trees and species such as spruce, which aren't attractive to the beetle. Trees take a long time to mature to an age at which they become marketable, so if we cut down all the pine now, many areas of B.C. won't have much of a forest industry for 80 years or more. Areas that have been clear-cut are also more prone to flooding.

Instead, the B.C. government must ensure that non-pine species aren't killed, that large areas are set aside to protect the habitat of species that are vulnerable to logging, and to preserve sensitive sites such as wetlands, lakes and rivers.

We should also learn everything we can from this epidemic, as it likely won't be the last. Other insects, such as the spruce budworm, are threatening forests in Eastern Canada, and the pine beetle itself has already leapt over the barrier of the Rocky Mountains to threaten the boreal forest that covers most of northern Canada.

Just because the beetles are small doesn't mean they are insignificant; it's not a matter of size.

Warming tougher on women: Nobel laureate

Climate change is harder on women in poor countries, where mothers stay in areas hit by drought, deforestation or crop failure as men move to literally greener pastures, a Nobel Peace laureate said this week.

"Many destructive activities against the environment disproportionately affect women, because most women in the world, and especially in the developing world, are very dependent on primary natural resources: Land, forests, waters," said Wangari Maathai of Kenya.

"Women are very immediately affected, and usually women and children can't run away," said Maathai, who won the 2004 Nobel Peace Prize for her work on sustainable development.

"Men can trek and go looking for greener pastures in other areas in other countries ... but for women, they're usually left on site to face the consequences," she said.

Mirrored wall can be stunning

Finding the right wall though can be a challenge

I sensed a new note of glamour in a friend's West End penthouse apartment while at her dinner party a couple of weeks ago. I scanned her lovely traditional-but-never-stuffy living room but nothing looked altered. However, the dining area was looking especially sparkling.

URBAN DWELLER

window but like many condos, that wall is the short one in a rectangular space, the most sensible spot for the entertainment unit. While dedicating that short wall to floor-to-ceiling storage and floating the furniture in a grouping makes the best use of a small living room and squares up a narrow space, mirroring that wall could do just the opposite. Any large entertainment/shelving unit would have to be placed along a long wall, exaggerating that shoebox effect.

During this especially dark winter I've tried to conjure up a way to bounce the weak natural daylight off the opposite wall while still retaining space for the TV, stereo, books, magazines and favourite objects.

One option is to get severely disciplined about what's allowed to live in the living room so the whole floor-to-ceiling shelving idea can be scrapped for a low credenza/buffet that could sit flush against a mirrored wall. I imagine a sleek vintage teak piece, with a pair of lamps book-ending a tray with pillar candles (my fireplace) and neat stacks of magazines. This vision would require replacing all the traditional stereo paraphernalia — stacked components, CDs — for an iPod and docking station.

The second option I've come up with is buying an entertainment unit composed of stacking square modules with flush doors that could be mirrored to create a large reflective grid. I'm still not sure whether that would create the light and visual space I crave or whether it would all look more suited for a bedroom.

Also, both options don't allow for hanging artwork nor do they solve the problem of having one's couch-potato reflection staring back while watching TV. It's just a matter of time before I lose the TV altogether — I'm more likely to watch the computer these days — but that reflection would still be there, a constant, subtle taunt on bad hair days and worse sweatpant evenings.

American Idol down to three

51 million vote tally highest so far this season

By SANDY CAETANO for Metro Vancouver

Jason Castro lost his chance at the American Idol crown when he didn't remember the lyrics for Bob Dylan's Mr. Tambourine Man.

The viewers were not as sympathetic for Castro, who was voted off the show last night, as they were two weeks ago with Brooke White when she fumbled on her song and had to start over. Maybe his magic has finally faded, or viewers really don't get his artistry.

It's not that Castro is a horrible singer, he's just not suited for this singing competition — he doesn't fit the Idol mould. Perhaps busking back in his hometown of Rockwall, Texas, will work better for him.

Nearly 51 million votes came flooding in following Tuesday's Rock And Roll Hall Of Fame themed show, the highest this season thus far. And it was so close that the competitors — Castro, David Cook,

Jason Castro isn't the only American Idol contestant to forget song lyrics — David Archuleta blanked on words, too.

David Archuleta and Syesha Mercado — were all within a million votes of one another.

Before the results were read, viewers were treated with the usual song and dance, a group performance that featured the Idol hopefuls singing Reeling In The Years by Steely Dan. After host Ryan Seacrest revealed that both Archuleta and Cook were safe, judge Randy Jackson offered a few words of advice to Cook.

"You just got to keep being yourself ... you've been one of our most original ever ... and rock it out baby," said Jackson.

More performances followed including a number by pop rock band Maroon 5, which sang If I Never See Your Face Again, and an appearance by Season 4 runner-up Bo Bice, who sang his new single Witness.

This week's bottom two included Mercado and Castro. Thankfully, Mercado will be returning next week as part of the final three. She has proven to be a very strong competitor, and one to be reckoned with. Unfortunately, it was Castro's turn to say goodbye.

"It's been a pleasure ... dreams do come true, so dream big," said Castro before ending the show singing Bob Marley's I Shot The Sheriff.

Ugly Betty to shift to Big Apple

MOVING ABC's Ugly Betty is expected to relocate to New York this coming season.

The comedy-drama, starring America Ferrera, is set in the Big Apple but had been filming in Los Angeles for its first two seasons.

Key to producer ABC Studios' decision to make the move is New York state's recent decision to triple its tax credit for film and TV productions to 30 per cent, with New York City offering an additional 5 per cent credit.

This will be Betty's second cross-country move. The pilot was filmed in New York, but production was shifted to the West Coast after a Big Apple shoot was deemed too expensive.

Mystery swirls in County

In the quiet town of Durham County, everyone knows one another and assumes they live in a world where nothing bad can happen.

Of course, that's not the case. Here, danger lurks where you least expect to find it.

This Canadian original drama is set to make its series debut on Global on May 19 at 10 p.m. ET/PT. The story revolves around Det. Mike Sweeney (Hugh Dillon) and his family as he hunts down a serial killer who may just end up being the guy who lives across the street.

Durham County, which first aired on The Movie Network, opens with two 18-year-old girls having a picnic with an older man who lures them into the woods. While he binds their hands and rapes them, and leaves them for dead, a second man, Ray Prager (Justin Louis), hides amongst the trees watching everything.

Prager later comes back to have his own sick fun with the girls, one of whom is still alive. This character has a twisted mind, like something more is happening than we, as viewers, can fathom. It's as if he's using his marriage and family life to hide from who he really is — a psychotic man who has to be in control.

Meanwhile, Sweeney takes his wife and two daughters away from the big city after his partner is shot and moves in across the street from Prager, who turns out to be an old high school rival.

Hugh Dillon plays Det. Mike Sweeney in Durham County.

As the first episode continues, viewers learn a little more about each of the characters. Sweeney's wife Audrey (Helene Joy) has been battling breast cancer and looks to be in remission, Prager's wife Traci (Sonya Salomaa) is having issues with her husband's controlling ways, Prager's son Ray Jr. (Greyston Holt) wants to go away to a writing school on his scholarship but his father refuses to let him go.

When Sweeney and Prager reunite, the tension between them indicates they have unfinished business. And while Sweeney loves his family and struggles to make it all work he is unable to forget Natalie Lacroix, with whom he fell in love while his wife was deemed to be dying of cancer.

Sandy Caetano has been with Metro for five years, and covers reality shows from Canadian Idol to The Bachelor. She's interviewed stars like Leanne Rimes, Lionel Richie, Paul Anka, Good Charlotte and more.

Cyrus' star waning?

THAT WAS FAST: A month ago, two major business magazines devoted feature space to a resurgent Disney and the not-old-enough-to-vote engine that was driving it: Miley Cyrus. Those issues haven't hit the recycling bin yet and already the reign of Hannah Montana at Disney looks to be waning, though it isn't likely it was just a couple of sullen photos in Vanity Fair that did it.

Audiences declined in just one week by 14 per cent as of last Sunday, according to a New York Daily News story, and Nielsen figures went on to report that ratings were down 26 per cent since January. None of this seemed to affect Disney chairman Bob Iger, who said in effect the ship was on course, and that icebergs are normal this time of year: "With a

RICK MCGINNIS
rick.mcginis@metronews.ca

new season of shows coming up, a new record in July and a theatrical film next year, the Hannah Montana/Miley Cyrus franchise is incredibly robust."

When people in the entertainment business use language like that, it's always best to look around the back to see if they're emptying out the store. As any parent will tell you, childhood is brief and cuteness briefer, so why is Disney banking so much on an artist whose audience was wearing Dora sneakers two years ago and will be posting "happy slapping" videos on YouTube in another two?

The Daily News story summed it up: "Experience shows that kid franchises such as Hannah that hit the rare white-hot phase are good for roughly 18 months, then start to fade." As parents will also tell you, by the time you've figured out what your kids are watching, listening to and talking about long enough for you to buy them the merchandise, they've already abandoned that fad and have moved on to new enthusiasms — like illegal pharmaceuticals, or self-mutilation. It's nice to know that business writers and the people who employ them are as hopeless as you.

Women bond stepfamilies

We all know the classic Disney story of Cinderella and her wicked stepmother, who kept her as a maid while her ugly stepsisters behaved like princesses.

Though an extreme scenario, it was a predictor of the current era, when stepmothering is common, and the possibilities for a negative relationship exist. Today, many people remarry, and countless women find themselves in the stepmother role.

Well, the hard reality is this: It's entirely up to those women, who marry men with children from a previous relationship, to guide the way for the families to merge. Basically, the stepmother-stepchildren relationship depends on how the woman acts and re-

Remember, the children

A WOMAN'S WORLD
LISI TESHER
letters@metronews.ca

don't ask for this new arrangement, and they're often burdened with divided loyalties.

Some women respond to their new role by wishing their husband would forget about his previous family, and they may do everything in their power to ostracize and separate the stepchildren. No matter how "good" the children may try to be, or how understanding and mature, they cannot compete with their father's new bride, especially if she's willful and manipulative. And in the end, barring they don't divorce, she'll win.

Other women may come up against serious anger, aggression, even resentment from their new stepchildren. No matter. If they're kind, loving, easy-going, and understanding, they'll eventually break down the walls these children have created, and help them grow into an extended family.

It's not easy, or that cut and dry. But remember: The children, whether babies or grown, didn't choose you over their real mother. It's up to you to win them over.

Comedian Stephen Colbert was awarded the Webby Person of the Year award.

Comedian Colbert takes home top Internet award

Comedian Stephen Colbert, whose mock U.S. presidential campaign was cut short, came out a winner on Tuesday when he walked away with a Webby award as the Internet's Person of the Year.

Other special achievement winners in the 12th annual Webby awards, known as the "Oscars of the Internet," included Black Eyed Peas' frontman and songwriter will.i.am, recognized as Artist of the Year, and French filmmaker Michel Gondry, who took home honors as Video Person of the Year.

The Webby awards, which honor excellence on the Internet, are presented by the International Academy of Digital Arts and Sciences, a 550-person judging academy. Winners will be honored at ceremonies on June 9 and 10th in New York, and, as always, will be limited to just a five-word acceptance speech.

Colbert won the highest honor for "the innovative way he has used the Internet to interact with fans" of his nightly cable TV show The Colbert Report.

Among other web achievements, a campaign by Colbert's fans made his show's official website the top Google search result under "Greatest Living American" and his "One Million Strong for Stephen T. Colbert" Facebook group attracted more than 78 members per minute in its first week.

Last year Colbert, who plays a pugnacious, egomaniacal talk show host on Comedy Central, cut short a playful run for the presidency after his requests to be on the South Carolina Democratic and Republic primary ballots was rejected.

The NYTimes.com and National Geographic, were among the other award winners.

The digits 1 through 9 will appear exactly once in each row, each column, and each zone. (A zone is an outlined 3x3 grid within the larger puzzle grid. There are nine of these zones in the puzzle.) Do not enter a digit into a box if it already appears elsewhere in the same 3x3 zone, or in the same row across the puzzle, or column down the puzzle.
